GRA SUPPORTS BUSINESS CONTINUITY AS HEAVY RAINS HIT ACCRA

The Ghana Revenue Authority (GRA) is urging businesses and taxpayers to take necessary precautions as heavy rains continue to affect parts of Accra and other areas, with further downpours expected in the coming days.

The Commissioner-General of GRA acknowledges that severe weather can disrupt transport, delay the movement of goods, affect business operations, and create additional pressure for businesses already working to meet customer and regulatory obligations.

The GRA assures the business community that efforts are being made to ensure services remain available throughout this period. Teams across the country's ports, border posts, and Taxpayer Service Centers (TSCs) have put measures in place to maintain essential Customs and Domestic Tax services.

The Authority's objective is to keep legitimate trade moving, minimize avoidable disruptions, and continue serving taxpayers as efficiently as possible. Businesses are encouraged to plan ahead, make use of our digital services where appropriate, allow for possible delays in transportation, and place the safety of their employees first. No business activity is more important than protecting lives.

The GRA is committed to supporting businesses during this period by maintaining service continuity and protecting the revenue that supports national development.

GRA wishes all taxpayers a safe week and urges the public to follow the advice of the relevant emergency and weather authorities as the rains continue.
